- provide guidance and capacity building to support best practice research impact and translation, including striving to continually critique and improve our practice as a field;
- represent and advocate for the MRI sector on impact and translation issues with key stakeholders – including government and other research funding and policy bodies – and provide coordinated responses to key impact-related policy initiatives; and
- ensure that all actions and recommendations are inclusive and reflect the diversity of the sector.

2. Role

The Research Impact Committee is responsible for:

- Recommending actions AAMRI can undertake to build and facilitate a translation and impact ethos and culture in all its activities;
- Recommending actions that medical research institutes can take to advance translation and impact policies, processes, and practices;
- Identifying areas where AAMRI can most effectively advocate for change, and work towards achieving meaningful, ethical and purposeful approaches to translation and impact within the health and medical research sector; and
- Overseeing a diverse and representative AAMRI Impact Network/CoP, including showcasing good practice, running networking events, and building sector capacity and understanding of research impact.

3. Membership

The membership of the committee comprises:

- Two Co-Chairs – who are senior impact leaders within AAMRI member institutes

¹ Research impact is “the verifiable outcomes that research makes to knowledge, health, the economy and/or society, and not the prospective or anticipated effects of the research. Impact is the effect of the research after it has been adopted, adapted for use, or used to inform further research. Research impact also includes research that leads to a decision not to use a particular diagnostic, treatment or health policy.” Source: NHMRC.

² Knowledge translation (KT) refers to the dynamic and iterative processes including synthesis, dissemination, exchange and ethically-sound application of knowledge to improve health, provide more effective health services and products and strengthen the health care system. Adapted from CIHR, 2000.

- AAMRI's Chief Executive Officer and/or nominee
- An AAMRI board member
- Up to 10 members who are professional impact staff and/or researchers who have a recognised impact role at an AAMRI member institute. We also welcome early and mid career researchers who bring their unique perspective to this space. Experience, insight and passion for facilitating translation and impact in medical research are key pre-requisites for membership

When recruiting new members, consideration will be given to ensuring the diversity of the committee (e.g. gender, ethnicity, impact expertise and experience, institute research focus and geographical location).
